What is it doing?

Otsimo is an award-winning educational platform developed under the supervision of child psychologists, teachers and families to support the education of children with special needs, who have autism spectrum disorder, down syndrome and learning difficulties. Application available via tablet and smartphones; more than 80 games aimed at developing communication, reading-writing, math and daily skills of children. Since the day the app were founded, have reached more than 90,000 small heroes who need special education in 160 different countries.

How can we help?

We try to reach families with special kids and our goals is reaching as much as we can. You can help us to reach more small heroes. In this context, if you have friends or know people you think Otsimo have an impact on their lives, please mention us. In this way, we can grow together and take a step closer to achieving our goal, democratizing the special education.
